

Spoliation as Translation : Medieval Worlds in the Eastern Mediterranean

Workshop organized by the Swedish Research Institute in Istanbul (SRII) and Koç
University's Research Center for Anatolian Civilizations (ANAMED)

Conveners: Ivana Jevtić and Ingela Nilsson

December 12–13, 2019

Opening lecture: Thursday, 12.12.2019, 19.00 at the SRII*

Margaret Mullett (Queens University, Belfast)

Spoiling the Hellenes: Intertextuality, Appropriation, Embedment

*Admission only after registration to event@sri.org.tr

Friday, 13.12.2019 at ANAMED

9:45 Ingela Nilsson: Welcoming Remarks

Session 1 (discussant Ingela Nilsson)

10.00 Karen Matthews, Fragments of the Past: Assessing the Meaning of Ancient Spolia in Pan-Mediterranean Visual Culture

10.30 Silvia Pedone, Reclaiming Marble: Identity and Alterity in the Byzantine Sculpture of Asia Minor

11.00 Coffee Break

Session 2 (discussant Margaret Mullett)

11.30 Suzan Yalman, Translating Spolia: A Recent Discovery of a Fragment from the Walls of Seljuk Konya

12.00 Baukje van den Berg, From Ancient Models to Byzantine Literature: Spoliating Ancient Texts in Byzantium

12.30 Ivana Jevtić, Revived or Reused? Antique Imagery in Late Byzantine Paintings

13.00 Discussion

13.30 Lunch

Session 3 (discussant Giovanni Gasbarri)

15.00 Armin Bergmeier, Translating the Byzantine Past in 13th-century Venetian Pseudo-Spolia

15.30 Federica Gigante and Jerome Mairat, Spoliation of Roman Coins in the Medieval Eastern Mediterranean

16.00 Coffee Break

Session 4 (discussant Olof Heilo)

16.30 Merve Özkılıç, Mapping Spolia for the İstanbul City Walls Project

17.00 Zeki Boleken, Aksaray Sultan Han: A Problem on the Use of Spolia in the Anatolian Seljuk Architecture

17.30 Discussion

20.00 Dinner

